

Plush birdie!

beak

Cut two pieces of the body and wing pieces, one piece for the beak. Attach the wings to where the marks on the body panels first and stuff them lightly before stitching them down completely. Next stitch the body panels together in the area between the two triangles (inside out, of course). Sew on an 8-inch length of ribbon as a hanger at the top triangle (again, notice that this will need to be inside the body). Sew on buttons for eyes at the marks, and then stitch the body panels between the two stars. Turn the bird right side out and stuff it and then sew the opening closed. Hem the beak on the straight-edged bottom where marked. Fold the beak on the dots, turn inside out and stitch the open side. Stuff lightly and then stitch the bottom edge of the beak to the body. TA-DA!

DISCLAIMER! I'm not a seamstress, here? I just made this up, and this is how I did it. I hope you like!
